LIZ'S CAREER

Liz returned to Sydney from working in London in 2016 for the private global company International SOS which has a presence in 79 countries. She held the position of Group General Manager, Global Strategic Planning, in the Government Services Division. Liz worked on projects from the Ebola outbreak in Sierra Leone to the provision of medical services in war zones. Her team was global and varied based on the requirements of each project.

In Sydney Liz has re-established her international consulting company and become a facilitator for the HG Learning Sets Program. Since 2017 Liz has lead major consultancies in Ukraine, this includes working with the United Nations World Bank in the development of public health. Consulting and working Internationally Liz has gained health care experience working for clients in the UK, USA, China, Ukraine, Papua NG, Middle East, Australia & New Zealand.

Liz is a bridge builder between the public, private, and not for profit sectors having worked in all three, including:

- A CEO of two area health services, including hospital turnaround.
- Capital infrastructure innovation including the integration of translational research, cancer care, and integrative wellness in the design group of The Kinghorn Cancer Centre.
- 7 years as a Westpac institutional banker leading mergers and acquisitions of health, aged care, diagnostic services and public/private partnerships

Her focus on models of care always includes prevention and early intervention in the community with the aim of the hospital as the place of 'last resort'. Liz is a lead judge the SALUS European Healthcare Design Awards for the category of design for health and wellness.
